

University to Build $950,000 Science Building

FAIRFIELD HALL WON'T BE THERE LONG when the University actually starts building the new $950,000 science building. With the Technology building as a next door neighbor, the new addition might well change the Park Place name to Science Row.

Plans for the construction of a $950,000 science building on the University campus were announced by Alfred V. Bodine, chairman of the university's board of trustees.

Fund Drive in Spring

A fund-raising campaign will get underway this spring, Mr. Bodine said. National industrial concerns and foundations, alumni, individuals, and area business and industrial organizations will be asked to give financial support, he said.

A preliminary survey among selected groups of local industrialists and businessmen, conducted by James H. Halsey, University president, indicates a great interest in the program, Mr. Bodine said.

Work Starts In Fall

Approximately $250,000 for the building already is on hand in the University's development fund, Mr. Halsey reported.

Actual construction is expected to begin this fall with the structure to be ready for academic use in September, 1959.

Completion of the science building will enable the University to offer major work in chemistry and physics.

Departments of chemistry and physics are a part of the College of Arts and Science at the University, but laboratory space and facilities are limited. Last semester, 225 students took courses in physics with 325 enrolled in chemistry courses.

A Two Story Structure

Full programs leading to a bachelor of arts degree in physics and chemistry are expected to be initiated with the opening of the new building.

Plans call for a two story structure with a full basement. Approximately 50,000 feet of floor space will be included. The building will be of modern colonial design, in keeping with campus architectural styling, and will be designed by C. Wellington Walker, University architect.

In addition to physics and chemistry laboratories, the building will house biology laboratories, specialized equipment and audio-visual rooms related to science instruction, a large lecture hall with a seating capacity of 200 persons and faculty offices.

The building will be erected at Park Place and Hazel street, a site now occupied by Fairfield hall, according to Dr. Henry W. Littlefield, University vice president and chairman of the building committee. Construction at this site would place the Science building next to the University's Engineering-Technology building, which houses the College of Engineering.

Cites Increased Interest

"Increasing national interest in expanded programs of scientific education has given added significance to the construction of the Science building at this time," Mr. Bodine said.

"The University of Bridgeport seeks to give area youth a quality education," he said, "and every effort is being made to provide the necessary laboratories, classrooms and facilities."

Steadily increasing enrollment at the University of Bridgeport utilizes present classroom space to the maximum, Mr. Bodine reported. More classrooms are needed to accommodate further expansion of the student body.

Forty one buildings on approximately 40 acres of ground comprise the present University campus adjacent to Seaside Park.

More than 4,000 students were enrolled in full and part-time programs in combined day and evening divisions. Approximately 1,850 registered as full-time students last fall.

Students from 15 states and 21 foreign countries are numbered in the student body. About 650 students from outside the Greater Bridgeport area live in dormitories on campus.

Recent construction in the University's planned program of expansion included two four-story dormitories for women, each housing 150 women, and a dining hall with facilities for 700 students opened for use last September. The total cost of the three units was $1,700,000, of which $1,500,000 was borrowed from the U.S. Housing and Home Administration agency on a self liquidating basis.

Graduation Date Shift Stirs Hassle

by Lorri Harner

A change in the University calendar has pushed up the spring commencement date from Sunday afternoon, June 8, to Friday evening, June 6. This was done to enable President James Halsey and Dr. Henry Littlefield to attend as neither could be there on the original date.

However, this change of date would eliminate the traditional senior weekend which would have been comprised of a dinner dance on Friday, a play on Saturday, and a parent-graduate brunch on Sunday.

Ed Chin, senior class president, commented that while these functions could be held the week before commencement, many students begin work immediately after their last final and would therefore be unable to attend.

At a recent Student Council meeting it was also brought out that parents of out of state students might have to miss half a day's work to allow themselves sufficient traveling time. Then too, sundown on Friday begins the Jewish sabbath at which time Orthodox Jews are not allowed to ride in cars.

One Council member queried, "What are the administration's main reasons for refusing to change the dates of the Christmas vacation after the student balloting was that the dates had already appeared in the catalogue, and people had made plans on the basis of those dates. By the same token, so has the commencement date appeared in the same catalogue. Where is the consistency in their logic?"

At this same meeting it was agreed that, while the new date was grossly inconvenient for the graduates, either the president or vice-president of the University should be present to officiate.

Vinny Caprio, Council president, explained that Dr. Littlefield was leaving for Europe, a trip he had been planning for a few years, and that President Halsey was receiving an award.

Council members suggested that perhaps Mr. Halsey could receive his award at the commencement exercises. A question at another hour of the day, one that would permit President Halsey to attend.

Chin called a meeting of the senior class and all graduating sophomores for Wednesday noon, February 12.

He said that he had contacted the administration concerning the situation, and that they were quite willing to effect a compromise as to the day and hour if that was what the majority of the students wished.

Chin mentioned the possibility of having each graduate and his parents write a letter to the administration.

Chin stated emphatically that, "If we can get the students to back us up, I'm sure we can find a solution satisfactory to all. But we need their support!"

Dental Freshmen Receive Caps

The dental hygienist's cap, symbol of the profession, was given to 37 freshman students by the University's Fones School of Dental Hygiene last Sunday in ceremonies at the University Gym.

Guest speaker was Dr. Philip Adams, past president of the American Assoc. of Orthodontists. Other guests were: Dr. Jesse J. Englander, president, Connecticut Dental Assoc., and Mrs. Virginia Spahn, president, Connecticut Dental Hygienists' Assoc. Pres. James H. Halsey greeted the class.

Dr. Robert H. W. Strang, director, Fones School of Dental Hygiene, reported on the progress of the school and the Rev. Caryl V. Benson, pastor of Salem Lutheran Church, delivered the invocation and the benediction.

Students receiving their caps were:

by Roger Lefkon

This past Friday evening saw Brooklyn College score in the final 15 seconds of play to send the University of Bridgeport down to its bitterest defeat since coach Herbert E. Glines assumed the coaching duties in 1945. The final score was Brooklyn College 69, UB 67.

In the most disgusting, outlandish exhibition of mob violence seen in many a moon, this past Friday evening also saw "finis" written to the fine playing career of Hal Hellerman, popular captain of the UB quintet.

With the score tied and 15 seconds remaining to be played, the soft spoken UB star was literally punched, kicked and beaten unconscious, while his teammates stood helplessly by, a ring of "Brooklyn Spectators" separating them from Hellerman who was being held by one Brooklyn College player and swarmed over by a countless number of spectators.

Hellerman, who was nothing short of sensational during the first half of play scoring 18 points to give the Purple Knights a half-time lead of 41-38, was finally removed to the dressing room where his blood stained jersey was removed for what in all probability will be the last time.

Ironically enough, it was these same fans that had rooted Hal to All-American honors while he was a junior college performer at Community College in the "friendly" borough of Brooklyn. It was these same fans that Friday evening shut the door in the face of Hal's playing career.

In the absence of any of "New York's Finest" Hellerman received a fractured nose, deviated septum, lacerations of the face and eye, and various other head injuries. The 23-year-old product of New Utrecht High School was removed to Bridgeport Hospital

Council's Plight

Student Councils, at this and other colleges, have a fatal habit of turning into debating societies rather than administrative groups. The reasons for this plight are many as well as varied. What is a good Student Council? What's wrong with the one we've got? These have become popular questions on this campus and they are almost unanswerable.

But there are some standards for judging office holders and there are also some insights available as to the vexations now suffered in our well furnished Council chambers.

In our minds, a "good Council" is one that deals with the concrete problems around it with a weary eye to any scheme that would curtail the rights of a student. In short a Council that can be called "good" is one that is constantly seeking out ways to make the student's lot an easier one. These noble aims can only be achieved by alert young people who are interested in their job and are willing to learn about the situations facing them.

Well, what about our own Council? Surfacely it does a competent job. It has taken steps to form a book exchange, attempted liaison between faculty-administration and student.

A deeper look however, shows that our Council has done little or nothing to make itself a governing body. It has not built up a backlog of good faith with the student body. Now book exchanges are gallant undertakings and they should not be made light of. Nor should the purchase of Student Council Pins, banners, pictures and other such needed organizational paraphernalia. But we feel that these items do not take preference over questions that threaten student rights or needs.

During this past year, when two major issues have been at stake, the Council insisted on disregarding them to debate the finer points of whether or not a salesman should be allowed to speak to the Council. True, during the Christmas vacation hassel the Council sanctioned the election, but when that election was flagrantly disregarded they docily emulated the arabs and folded their tents.

Recently a Faculty Senate proposal was brought onto the floor of that venerable group that would have silenced the Scribe and restricted the student newspaper along lines more acceptable to the administration. At that time, when one of the most basic of student rights, or anyones for that matter, were in jeopardy, the Council remained humbly silent and decided after discussions of deepest gravity that they would not allow the salesman to talk before the Council. It was the faculty who saved the Scribe, not the Council.

True, Dr. Alfred Wolff said that he would come before the Council to explain the Dean's action on the Christmas vacation, but it was he that made the suggestion and not the council.

Well why all this apathy on the Council's part? One answer could well be the method used to elect a councilman in the first place. These posts have been popularity contests for years and perhaps a system of qualifications should be worked out before a person is allowed to run. Secondly we might suggest that a "recall" clause be put into the Student Bill of Rights that would allow a class to recall a councilman who was not serving their ends. In this way we might not find that the Council president and his immediate executive staff were doing all the work while the rest of the group garnered year book credits.

During the winter semester, Vincent Caprio, president, stated that a new organizational structure was going to be used in Council that would see an executive committee handling all pertinent material and the rest of the Council serving on committees. As yet this system has not been brought into effect. This may or may not put some life into the student governing body, but it is worth the try.

Of course there will always be the old councilman's cry that no one on campus is interested in the University so why should he knock himself out. This is unfounded and shows a complete lack of understanding of the attitude of the average student.

Certainly he isn't interested in 90% of the discussions that go on in Council. He doesn't care how many salesmen you talk to or how many banners you buy. All he asks is that you "watch the store" for him and make sure that no one comes along and tramples on his rights. He doesn't have to go to the football games or be the first in line for convocations. Furthermore, no one demands that he be interested in you, but he can well demand that you be interested in him. Sounds unfair you say? No, my friend that's what we call responsibility.

Weather Won't Stop Classes

The University has restated its policy concerning the cancellation of classes due to inclement weather.

Dean Earle Bigsbee announced that the University will hold classes whenever possible in order to provide the instruction for which the students have contracted.

Bigsbee added, "because of the maturity of college students and the presence of seven hundred students on campus, classes will not be cancelled when local schools do. Cancellation will be considered when conditions are severe enough that major industries within the city close."

On the few occasions when sessions are cancelled, public announcement will be made over the local radio stations between 7 and 8 a. m. for day sessions and between 4 and 6 p. m. for evening sessions.

Dear Editor —

Last semester your editorial staff was so busy patting the Registration Committee on the back that they forgot about us people who couldn't take courses because they were closed out.

I know everyone gripes about it and there is nothing that can be done. Let's face it, the University couldn't teach a course unless they were making money on it. All most of us want is an even break at registration and I mean even.

In case your editorial staff, or the registration committee, does not know it, most "big wheels" around this campus have their friends pull their class cards for them before they enter the Gym. I was in back of one person who was signing for the same course I was. Mine was closed out, but he showed up at the bursar's table with a class card for that course.

I don't have any pull around here, I just came for the education. How about the Registration Committee getting on the ball and checking the people that work at registration to make sure things are run democratically. At the rate things are going right now it will take most of us "nobodies" six years to get out of here.

Just a Nobody

Dear Editor —

Help! Send the Coast Guard Call out the Marines. The mud is running so high at Chaffee Hall we won't be able to get out when the spring thaw comes. Please Mr. Halsey, some sidewalks. Ole Muddy Shoes

Dear Editor —

Well they did it again. They dropped a course on me in my freshman year, two more in my sophomore year and now they chopped another one on me. When you go to your advisor, she says she doesn't know why it was dropped. When you go to the Dean, he just shakes his head and says "I'm sorry." I know the University has to make money to exist but I should think that one or two "debtor" courses could be arranged to help us get out of here.

Cut Again

Dear Editor —

The Student Council, or who ever started the Book Exchange, should get a hearty congratulation from all of us. It's about time someone started to give the book store competition.

Lou Desmond

Dear Editor —

I am sick and tired of taking courses that you can pass without a text, but they insist that you buy one anyway. This holds true in most survey courses and everyone knows it. If the professor is going to rehash the text, then why do we have to spend five or six bucks to read what he has already told us in class. I'm not saying that the professors don't know how to teach, I think I'm getting a good education. But I don't see the sense of spending money for a book that I don't use.

I also don't like the idea of professors changing editions each year so you can't buy an old text from someone who has already had the course. One instructor might have been kidding when he said they change the edition because they might write a text someday and want to keep making money on it each year, but I don't think it's funny.

Bookworm

Dear Editor —

As much as we dislike hiding behind fictitious names, we feel that we must ask you to withhold our names if you should publish this letter. We do so because we have no choice. We have no proof of the charges we are going to make, but we know it happened, and will happen again. If we would be marked by fellow students and in the end we would lose more than we hope to gain.

When we say there is cheating going on around campus we know that we are not letting everyone in on a great big secret. But we do not think that student or faculty have any idea of how well organized the cheating is nor do they realize how much it has hurt some students.

While most instructors keep a vigilant eye during an exam, and even bring in extra proctors, they are wasting their time. The exam, or a copy of it, has been well circulated before the test to a select group of cheats and therefore they have no need to look at anyone else's paper.

This hurts most honest students because we are forced to compete for a curved grade against people who have already seen the test. One person we talked to told us that he cheated because he had to. If he did get to see the copy of the exam before the test as other people did, he felt that he would be giving away a good grade. This is a case of someone wanting to be honest and not being able to because people wouldn't let him.

We, therefore, suggest that all instructors be very careful of their "extra copies" and possibly their "student helpers" in order to give those of us who want to be honest an even break in a test.

We know talking about a moral code and ethics is not enough so we bring it right to the instructors, don't give the cheats a chance to steal an exam.

The Four Vigilantes

War at Ann Arbor

The following statements are the fruits of a Student Editorial Affairs Conference held recently at the University of Michigan. We print it here, not because we are a member of this group, but because we feel these young gentlemen represented the tempo of college thinking throughout the country.

We have no intention of joining such an organization for we feel that the University of Bridgeport does have a free press and needs no outside help in maintaining it. We do think, however, that students should be aware of what other college newspapers are facing. In many ways the Scribe is quite fortunate. We have our squabbles with administration and faculty, but in the long run we are quite definitely a very "free press."

Here is a reprint of the principles, charges and resolutions dealt with at Ann Arbor.

STATEMENT OF PRINCIPLES: Whereas the Student Editorial Affairs Conference believes and endorses the following principles:

- 1) That a free and vigorous press is an essential feature of a democratic society;
- 2) That, although in many college communities the student press is owned by an organization other than itself, such as a university government, nevertheless, it is inherent and essential that in an academic community freedom of the press transcends consideration of private property;
- 3) That the aims of the student press cannot be achieved unless its independence from all forms of external interference or censorship is maintained inviolate and complete.
- 4) That freedom of expression and debate is essential to the effectiveness of an educational community in a democratic society;
- 5) That the student press has the responsibility and obligation of informing and educating its readers and interpreting to them local and national and international events;
- 6) That the student press has the responsibility and obligation for the presentation of ideas, controversial or otherwise;
- 7) That the student press must at all times recognize its profound obligation to exercise all rights in a responsible fashion;

STATEMENT OF FACTS: Whereas freedom of the student press has been abridged in the following ways:

- 1) Confiscation of issues of student newspaper due to publication of controversial ideas which faculty or administrative authorities consider detrimental to the reputation and welfare of the institution or same department of the institution;
- 2) Suspension, expulsion, or threats of similar action against student editors or publications due to the publishing or proposed publishing of matters which faculty or administrative authorities consider detrimental to the reputation and welfare of the institution in some department of the institution;
- 3) Control of the content of a student newspaper through censorship by faculty or administrative authorities so that the student newspaper tends to become a public relations organ of the institution.
- 4) Censorship by bodies of the student government so that the student newspaper tends to become an organ for and of the student government;
- 5) Censorship of articles on controversial matter, and or editorial comment on such matters through financial pressure.
- 6) Censorship of articles on controversial or timely matters and or ecclesiastical authorities;
- 7) Inordinate and excessive social pressure to prevent publication of particular issues or opinions;

THEREFORE: The first Student Editorial Affairs Conference condemns all such actions and interference as listed under the statement of facts and declares the following fundamental rights and privileges essential for the effective execution of the responsibilities and obligations of a free student press;

- 1) Within the legal restrictions of libel laws and conscience of the editors, the student press shall have final jurisdiction and freedom from control of student government, school administration, and all other administrative, civil, or ecclesiastical agencies;
- 2) The student press shall be free from all types of financial and inordinate and excessive social pressure from student government groups, university or college authorities, state or city officials, ecclesiastical authorities, advertisers, or subscribers;
- 3) The student press shall be free to present all articles concerning controversial matters and opinions upon such matters.
- 4) The student press shall be free from all faculty and administrative censorship;
- 5) The student press shall be free to develop and serve its community as its editors believe just and fitting.

Along Park Place With Vinny Caprio

Rick Topham's lovely wife Ruth gave him new impetus for the semester. She presented him with an 18 pound, 14 ounce bundle of joy. They haven't decided on a name as yet, but Goliath is under consideration. Congratulations to the new mom and dad.

Caprio Under the able tutelage of Dr. Roucek, Mickey Donahue has taken the fatal step into the realm of chaotic bliss bliss known compassionately as matrimony. The lifetime partner, selected to traverse the trials and tribulations of connubial in-tanglement is pretty Joan Wamsco. Mick is a political science major, while his better half is doing nursing chores. Sincere wishes for many years of continuous harmony.

Senior class treasurer Al Jones has been running the gauntlet from these hallow halls of ivy to Long Island with ease these days. He's been on cloud 34 1/2 since hearing the acceptance to his marriage proposal. The very pretty Ronnie Trezza's newest alimant is left-handites, and being a nurse, a remedy shouldn't be too hard for her to find. Al is a member of Theta Sigma and a marketing major.

Oddities around U.B.: Lack of accidents caused by speeders on our thoroughfares... lack of proper identification of the University itself to visitors... Ron Miller looking like a real student... lack of illumination on Park Place between Park Ave. and Fones... Eric Schaafstall's "Take me to your leader" or "No drinkee Tea, only drinkee whis"... Fred Reichert's frequent advances toward Linda, the ice cream lady... Charlie Huestis' chess games with Phyllis... Dick Bonnin putting out the fire on a chaise lounge... Herb Swift still making the rounds of the Frosh class with Judy Rogers.

Sincere regards to Ed Caliendo and Joan Auriello as they begin their journey into never-never land called courtship. Ed, an education major, presented Joan with a sparkler recently. His "Fair Lady" is a teacher at Bassick High, who is of valuable assistance in Ed's chosen field of endeavor.

The newly formed Canterbury Club is holding a square (no diggin cats prohibited) dance Sunday evening, Feb. 16, from 7 until 9 P.M. at St. John's Episcopal Church. Mr. Kendall, a history instructor at UB, will exhibit his talents in the art of set-calling. Free refreshments will be served.

The latest item of gossip at the College of New Rochelle is the "girls' best friend" on the dainty finger of Joan Heller. Miss Heller's charms were responsible for Bob Brown's name being removed from UB's eligible roster. Bob is a secondary education student here while Joan is studying chemistry.

Newest from OSR this week is that Joe O'Brien is over his attack of those nasty little insects. His fingernails should be worn to a frazzle by now, and will be relieved to know of the disappearance.

After an extended sojourn to Miami, two nursing students burned the mid-night oil telling of their fraternization with a couple of members in the "July 26" society. They claim the fellows were better cha-cha dancers than guerillas.

Glad to see Mr. Chapman of the accounting department back at the old grind. Ah! Sabbaticals, and the troubled life of an instructor.

Council Plans 'Federal' Type Organization

by Lorri Harner

The tentative plan to revamp Student Council is modeled after the United States Constitution according to William T. De Siero, advisor to Council.

He explained that this new system of student government would be divided into three branches: executive, legislative, and judicial.

The chief executive, the president of the student body, would be elected directly by the students. He would have to be 21, a senior, and a student at the University for one year before his election. He would be required to have a cumulative QPR of about 2.4.

He would, similar to the president of the United States, appoint a cabinet to aid him with the administrative work. He would also appoint student members to the University's judicial body. These and all other presidential appointments would be subject to the approval of the legislature.

The judicial system would combine the now existing Ethics Committee (for academic problems) and the General Disciplinary Committee (for social problems) into one court. This court would be composed of students and faculty members. Qualifications for student members have not been considered, but their term of office would be one year.

The third department, the unicameral legislature, in addition to okaying appointments made by the president of the student body, would formally initiate and vote on all new business. The bills that this body might pass would need the president's signature; however, a bill could be passed over the president's veto by a two thirds majority vote of the legislature.

Members of this body would be elected in the same manner as is now used for the Student Council elections. They would need a 2.0 cumulative QPR and would also have to be a member of the class electing them since they would be officers of that class, too.

Meetings would be conducted by the presiding officer who would be elected by his fellow representatives.

Vinny Caprio, president of the Council, declared himself in favor of the new plan. He explained that as the situation is now, the burden of the work is unevenly distributed with a few students serving in executive and judicial positions as well as their official legislative capacity.

"With the new system," Caprio said, "each student will function in only one department, thus allowing him to devote his complete attention to the single set of duties. This should provide a more efficient and effective student government," Caprio concluded.

Although a plan similar to this one was originated in the spring of 1957 by Bob D'Andrea, former Council president, no action was taken on it until this semester.

Mr DeSiero is the University's unofficial "constitution-writer" having drawn up constitutions for over 60% of the organizations on campus.

Mr. DeSiero said he hoped to have this new constitution completed in time for the student government elections in May. He explained that because of the technicalities involved and the large amount of detail work, this will be a time consuming job.

A committee formed of Council members will work with Mr DeSiero.

Littlefield Gets Director's Post

Dr. Henry W. Littlefield, vice president of the University was elected a director of the Littlefield & Adams Publishing Co., at the annual meeting of the company in Chicago last week-end.

Dr. Littlefield has also been named consulting editor for the Littlefield & Adams College Outline series. The company to date has published over 100 titles dealing with subjects taught in college.

The vice president is co-author of three texts published by Littlefield & Adams including: "Documents of American History," "American History to 1865" and "American History since 1865."

Sweetheart Queen Reigns at Ball

Seven lovely girls are the University coeds selected as finalists in the campus wide competition for the Sweetheart Queen crown. The 12th annual presentation of the award will be made during the Sweetheart Ball at the Ritz ballroom tomorrow night, to the finalist polling the majority of votes in a student body election held this week.

The local contenders for the valentine prize are: Donna Lee Hoffman, 18; Phyllis Whitney, 20 and Bernadette M. Ferrone, 22.

Miss Hoffman is a freshman majoring in fashion merchandising while Miss Whitney, a sophomore, is majoring in French. Miss Ferrone is a senior in the University's College of Education where she is specializing in elementary teaching.

The other finalists include: Arlyne Almandinger, 19, Glastonbury, sophomore majoring in fashion merchandising; Dian Doda, 19 also a sophomore majoring in physical education. Miss Doda is from Derby. Two native New Yorkers in the competition are Anne S. Friedman, 18, a junior majoring in history and Roberta Blender, 19, a sophomore liberal arts major.

The girls were selected from a group of 17 coeds by a panel of judges comprised of University faculty and staff members. They had been nominated by various fraternities, sororities, dormitory groups and other campus organizations.

Although physical beauty helps, one of the judges pointed out that the main things involved in selecting a finalist are her social poise, intelligence and her ability to communicate ideas.

Last year's queen was Carol Hajas, of Bridgeport.

The Pat Dorn orchestra will play at the dance.

Knights Meet Top-Flight St. Francis Club Friday

The Purple Knight hoopsters, who have had a tough road to hoe all season, will be up against it gain this week when they tangle with one of New York's finest combines, St. Francis tomorrow at the Gym.

Although the Terriers of St. Francis have a winning record of 9-6, it is a far cry from the 22-3 season they enjoyed in 1956. The Terriers lost Walt Adamushko, but in Al Innis, they have one of the top rebounders in the country. Besides his tremendous rebounding ability, the husky 6-7 Innis is deadly from underneath as is attested by his 20-point per game average.

In addition coach Danny Lynch has Tony D'Elia, Les Yellin, Bob Duane and Terry Dugan as his starters. All are seniors with the exception of Dugan who is a junior. Duane, 6-3, and Dugan, 6-4, are the front court men. Lynch has a slick pair of backcourt operators in D'Elia, the playmaker and Yellin.

The Bridgeport team, which has been experiencing difficulty of late, find consolation in the progress and development of two sophomores. Ed Wysocki, the 6-3 pivotman, has become a deadly shot from close in and has scored 39 points in the last five games. Tony Granger, 5-11 guard, has played well along with Charley Doyle.

Wlassak; Dieter To Lead Booters

Frank Wlassak, and George Dieter, have been elected co-captains of the University varsity soccer squad for the 1958 season.

Wlassak was elected to the first team on the All-New England squad at the center half position this year. A junior enrolled in the College of Engineering, he is majoring in mechanical engineering.

Dieter suffered a shoulder separation in pre-season training this year and was unable to play.

Last year he made the second All-New England squad at the goal position. Also a junior, Dieter is majoring in physical education in the Arnold College Division of Physical Education. He is also a regular on the basketball squad.

Coach John McKeon considers both of his co-captains as potential All-American material.

Bridgeport plays an 11 game schedule this fall including eight contests in the New England Inter-Collegiate Soccer League. Yale will be on the University schedule for the first time. The Knights finished in a tie for third this year, posting a 5 - 3 record.

Coach McKeon's team have won 32 games while losing 12 and tying one during the past five seasons.

Metals Course Begins Monday

A 10-week non-credit course in "Ferrous Metals-Principles and Processes" will be offered at the University beginning Feb. 17. Registration will take place prior to the first class in Marina hall, Marina Park circle, at 6 p. m.

Given under the auspices of the College of Engineering, the course is designed to give people with a background in high school physics and chemistry a grounding in the philosophy metals. Instruction will include definitions, descriptions and demonstrations of the principles, processes and terminology of ferrous metals.

A University spokesman stated that the course will "provide registrants with a basis of logic which will survive after specific terms and processes have been forgotten."

The course, which will meet every Monday evening from 6:30 through 8:30 p. m. over a 10-week period, will be taught by Mr. Sidney S. Speed, a foundry metallurgist with the Aluminum Company of America.

Faculty Women Sponsor Supper

A club spokesman stated that the tables will be decorated with favorite house plants belonging to various members of the executive committee of the organization. The rest of the decor will follow a valentine theme.

Following the dinner, two short films will be shown by the University's audio-visual department under the direction of Dr. David Silverstone. A coffee hour will follow the film showing.

where he was operated on Monday.

To all who were present it was the most awesome spectacle of violence ever seen on a college basketball court. In the words of Jimmy Moskowitz, referee, "it was a disgrace to basketball." And in the minds of many it was the referees who were in part responsible. For it was they who proceeded to gradually let the game get out of hand as the second half unfolded, "missing" many of the obvious fouls being committed on the floor.

When the spectators started drifting out onto the floor late in the game, Glines' plea to have them removed from under the basket went almost entirely unnoticed.

One might be led to believe that Hellerman would bear some remorse towards his fellow Brooklynites, but the 6-6 Hellerman, sitting in his hospital bed, just grinned and said, "what are you gonna do, it's part of the game." As Hellerman talked between bites of his dinner he further added, "well anyway the food here is good." What more can you say about a guy like that, he's a credit to the game.

When questioned further on the touchy subject of Friday night, Glines said the "sportsmanlike" that is growing by leaps and bounds in college basketball. He also commented as to the fine character and playing ability of his star center.

Glines seemed markedly disturbed about the whole incident and wondered what had happened to college athletes and spectators who at one time came to play and see a ball game not partake in and be a witness to a bloody massacre.

As far as the remainder of the UB schedule this season, the picture is dark indeed with eight remaining, two of them league contests.

The Knights will return to action tomorrow night when they play host to St. Francis of Brooklyn.

Both words must have the same number of syllables — bleak freak, fluent truant, vinery finery. Send Sticklers, with your name, address, college and class to Happy-Joe-Lucky, Box 67A, Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Don't do drawings! We'll pay $25 for every Stickler we use in our ads — and for hundreds that never see print. While you're Stickling, light up a light smoke — light up a Lucky.
